Behavior Consultant Corner, by Shannon Taylor

Think of the last time you started a new job. On your first day, you were likely nervous about what the day would bring. You were probably introduced to many new people and given directions of what was expected of you. Maybe some people excluded you...perhaps others were a little too eager to get to know you and asked too many personal questions. How long did it take you to get comfortable with your job duties? How long before you were completely sure of your expectations? How long did it take you to learn how to deal with all those new personalities, including your supervisor's? Oh, you're still learning after 5 years? Fascinating! This is how many children feel when they go through major transitions in their lives, such as switching to a new child care center. The most important tools you can use to help a child with any kind of transition are patience, love, and understanding.

Children need to be given time to get to know their new surroundings, including the children, the teachers, and the physical environment. If possible, give the child an opportunity to visit his new place of child care prior to his actual start date. This may help ease some of those initial first-day jitters. Once he starts, allow him time to reacquaint himself each morning until he overcomes his nervousness. This may take a couple of weeks or even a couple of months...

maybe even longer, because every child is different! No two children will handle this type of transition exactly the same way. As a child care provider introducing a new child to your setting, it is important to remember to offer support and reassurance until he is completely comfortable. As I am watching the earliest signs of spring appear, I anticipate beautiful warm sunny days ahead. Let me take this time to encourage you to take your infants and toddlers outside to enjoy the good weather. Even the littlest ones can enjoy the great outdoors. Spread some blankets on the ground and let them enjoy tummy time outside. Which reminds me; WVIT graduates and participants mark your calendars for Great Beginnings September 17-18 in Summersville WV. This fall's conference will be chock full of ideas on how to get those little ones outdoors and what to with them once you get them out there. We will have an outdoor classroom for you to explore, remember some items from that classroom will go home with you! Directors here are dates for you to save.

Directors' Academy July 8—10, 2010

and share ideas. There will be a total of 16.75 hours of WV STARS registered training in program management, child growth and development, curriculum, family and community, and child observation. Early Care & Education Modules by Kathy Meadows

You provide care for children all the time. Have you stopped to think what that means? We have developmental milestones to help us track where a child should be, but children do not develop at the same pace. Each one is different. Child development is more than just physical development. Take into consideration how children play, learn, speak and behave.

By the time a child is two he or she should name objects, run more than walk, eat with a spoon, name objects, listen to stories with pictures watch others play etc. They can also lack control, be self-centered and sometimes be a dawdler. As a professional you want to help children develop appropriately. The Components of Quality Care and Education can help you do this. Each class will give you knowledge allowing you to provide developmentally appropriate activities for the children. The modules are for people who care for children two and a half to five years of age. You attend class once a week for eight weeks. The length of each class is four hours. You must attend all eight sessions. Upon completion of the training modules you will receive a certificate and resources to use with your children.

Requirements for the CQCE modules include a pre and post visit and each participant must be registered on the West Virginia State Training and Registry System (S.T.A.R.S) program.

The CQCE modules will be held at Link beginning Wed. April 14th at 12:00. The registration deadline is Friday March 26. If you are interested in being a part of the module classes, call Kathy Meadows at 304-523-9540 or 1-800-894-9540 ext.112 or you may e-mail her at Kathy.L.Meadows@wv.gov.

ATTENTION ALL JOURNEYPERSONS & 4TH SEMESTER ACDS STUDENTS:

On April 13, 2010, an Articulation Summit will be held in Bridgeport, WV on behalf of prospective students who plan to further their education beyond ACDS. The purpose of this event is to bring all WV community and technical colleges and four-year institutions together to discuss the importance of articulation agreements for early childhood education degree programs, and the barriers/obstacles to overcome in order for such agreements to be created. Articulation agreements with these institutions will mean, in part, that ACDS graduates can receive college credit for similar coursework already completed through the ACDS program, rather than unnecessarily repeating costly courses. On that note, it is IMPERATIVE that your voice is heard to help convince these institutions of this very important need for students in WV! In early March, surveys will be sent to all journeypersons & 4th semester students, & it will also be on the ACDS website. You can either mail, fax, or complete the survey online. If you are mailing/faxing it, please do not also complete the online survey as this will skew the results. Please submit by March 31, 2010. Online: www.wvacds.org; click the link for Articulation Survey. Thank you so much for taking the time to help yourself and future ACDS graduates!

T.R.A.I.L.S. Corner by Jennifer Conkle

Spring has arrived! The cold temperatures and snow did cause some delays in our schedule this winter, but now that better weather is ahead of us we look forward to visiting everyone soon.

As much as we experienced cabin fever this winter, I’m sure the children are ready to get outside and play! Now seems to be the time of year that interest in the great outdoors sparks, so remember that there are many activities that can be done outdoors to support all areas of development. We want to encourage you to think of ways to support your objectives and learning goals while enjoying the beautiful weather. For example, you can easily bring art activities outside with easels, spray bottle painting, or simple sidewalk chalk. Spring is also a wonderful time to point out insects and how things grow. Extend your learning environment

You can reach The T.R.A.I.L.S. Team, Jennifer Conkle or Virena Elkins, at 1-800-894-9540 or (304) 523-9540 for more information about TRAILS Services or to schedule a visit.

outdoors by keeping graphs and charts of things that children can observe. You may want to catch the rain on several days, allow the children to measure it, and keep a graph as a visual aid for the amount of rainfall we have this spring. If your children are showing an interest in insects consider ways to incorporate them both indoors and outdoors. You can look for insects in places they like to hide, or create an ant farm, or worm vue. Children also love to watch seeds sprout into plants! Consider planting a garden, or a few small plants or flowers in pots. Seeds also sprout well when wrapped in a moist tissue, placed in a sealed sandwich bag, and secured to a window that receives direct sunlight. If you plant vegetables your children can experience helping you gather the food and prepare it. They are more likely to try and appreciate new foods if they have the opportunity to assist in growing and preparing it. Another way to transition indoor play outside is to bring out dress up clothing, hats, dolls, and plastic foods. Children may want to extend their play with picnics and other role playing activities.

Again, T.R.A.I.L.S. has many items that can support you in developing and supporting your classroom activities. No matter what your children are interested in please use T.R.A.I.L.S. as a resource for planning your activities. If there is a specific need you have please contact us and we will be happy to assist you in anyway that we can. See you soon, Jennifer and Virena
